Suffragette Causes Near Riot at New York Meeting.

USHERS CARRY HER OUT

Maude Malone Hurls Challenge Regarding His Attitude on Babies and Votes.

NEW YORK, March 26.-Col. Rooseelt swung through the lower and upper made five campaign speeches in as many different halls, urging enrolled republians to vote for his delegates to the Chicago national convention at the primaries today. The colonel got a more or less expected when he reached the New Star Casino, at Lexington avenue and 107th

Almost a riot followed. The hall was mmed with 5,000 people, and every one yelled for her to sit down. The colonel begged her to take her seat, and when persisted in hurling questions at him Roosevelt tried to outspeak her. Neither was making much headway. Then the band struck up "Take a Little Tip From The resentment of the crowd was immediately turned to laughter. Two able-bodied ushers and a deputy sheriff seized Miss Malone, and, struggling violently, she was carried from the hall, the colonel all the time shouting that she be let alone. When comparative quiet was restored, the colonel launched forth on his views regarding woman suffrage, and then finished the regular speech he had

Slips on Platform.

The colonel reached the Casino about 9:10 o'clock. As he was pushing his way up a narrow flight of stairs to the platform he slipped and fell backward. Some one helped him to his feet and he finally reached the platform. The crowd was in good humor and gave the colonel the best reception of the evening. It yelled for about two minutes. After referring to Oscar Straus, who presided, as an old and tried friend who

Mr. Straus and half a dozen others rushed about the platform ner, and imploring the lonely woman to subside. All the time Miss Malone confinued firing questions, and this plainly exasperated the ex-President. Two stalwart ushers started for her.

"Let that woman alone; don't you ou hands on her!" the colonel fairly creamed. The ushers fell back abashed, while the crowd continued to laugh, hiss, yell and whistle. Finally the situation settled down to a talking match between the colonel and the suffragette. The former tried to continue his speech, but with every word Miss Malone screamed ques-tions. The colonel stood his ground stub-
